

Interim Quality Director Services

Stay on Track During Challenging Times

In this challenging health care environment with high turnover rates, it is not uncommon for health care organizations to find themselves without a quality director, manager, or someone leading accreditation and regulatory efforts.

Vacancy in these positions can be costly to your organization, add to already heavy workloads, and ultimately disrupt your ongoing attention to providing safe, high quality care. Look to Joint Commission Resources (JCR) when this situation arises. JCR's mission is to continuously improve the safety and quality of health care in the United States and in the international community through the provision of education, publications, consultation and evaluation services. Our Interim Quality Director Services can quickly provide you with an experienced, dedicated consultant who will help your organization stay on track when it comes to delivering safe, high quality patient care while mitigating risk. Our consultants can also provide an objective view of your organization to help you identify and address gaps in patient safety and quality.

An interim quality director from JCR can provide you with:

- Ongoing cohesiveness for your team while the leadership position is vacant
- Deep industry knowledge from a consultant who has previously served in a similar role and has helped many health care organizations like yours implement best practices
- Help with defining performance improvement measures throughout your organization
- Direct access to JCR documented insights, tools, and resources
- Focused quality improvement in areas needing attention such as readmissions and falls

We Can Help

Whether you have a position vacancy or just need additional staff to manage an increased workload, let JCR help you achieve and maintain high performance in delivering quality, patient-focused care.
